

HOMESPACE PROTECTION LIFESTYLE

Onwatch space protection can now be extended to all of those treasured possessions that make such a key difference to your quality of life. The amount we invest in our lifestyle is substantial and insurance seldom reflects the irreplaceable or sentimental value that it covers.

In our modern society, almost everything is at risk and while many utility objects can be readily replaced, lifestyle items have a cherished place in our lives and deserve to be adequately protected.

The list of leisure pursuits is almost infinite and ranges from collections to participating sports, which means that there is no one solution that covers everything. However, there are opportunities to group risks into generalities and in this sense, the use of 'space protection' in our service description is an excellent guide to the way that it works.

By creating a protected space around property of almost any kind, the early approach of an intruder is detected before any crime has been committed. Previously, using detection in this way has generated alarm activations without explanations of their nature but, by adding CCTV to verify the cause, false alerts can be segregated from genuine alarm situations. Adding audio to this process provides our central monitoring station (CMS) with an opportunity to evaluate the intrusion and issue a warning if necessary.

The development of ground positioning systems and mobile telephone technology has enabled the protected space solution to be extended to mobile lifestyle assets. Those items with an inbuilt power source, motor cars, caravans, boats etc., can have equipment embedded and powered in this way. For assets without power, battery powered systems with rechargeable and replaceable batteries can be used. In the home, a broadband connection to a dedicated PC can host the system and incorporate the full service range via the Internet.

Essentially Onwatch Homespace Protection is about prevention not detection. Although CCTV is used for verification purposes, it is technically difficult and thereby very expensive to obtain portrait pictures of intruders for the purposes of conviction. Furthermore, quality pictures of people that have stolen your precious property will not necessarily help to get it back.
